The Committee on New Dioceaes reported favorably upon the addition of the dioceae of Nebraska under the name of the Council of Nebraska.

S. B. Ruggles, a member of the committee, objected to changing the title of the church organization in the State, and thought the name of the dioceae should be adhered to. The convention, he said, should carefully guard against all such innovations.

Rev. Dr. Hawe, of Philadelphis, agreed with Mr. Ruggles. If the convention set this precedent, it would not be long before dioceses would be asking admission under the name of the Reformed Catholic Church or Synods.

Rev. Dr. Pitkin, of Michigan, was in favor o' admitting the diocese under the name of the Episcopate Council.

Rev. Dr. Mead, of Conn., opposed the admission of the Diocese of Nebraska under that title as unconstitutional. He, however, proposed to vote for its admission conditional upon its changing its title as soon as the diocese should meat.

Brevt Brig. 6 n. R. C. Drum, A. A. G., Department of the sou h, Atlanta, Ga:

General.—I have the honor to report that, in compliance with Order No. 44, from Headquarters of the South, I proceeded to Camilla, Mitchell county, Ga, on the 23d inst, to investigate the occurrences at that place on the 19th. I respectfully report as follows:

A few days previous to the 19th inst., notices were circulated in Dougherty and Mitchell counties that a Republican meeting would be held at Camilla, Georgia, on that day, and that W. P. Pierce, a candidate for Congress for that district; John Murphy, candidate as elector for that district, Putney, and others would address the meeting; that pursuant to that notice, a number of colored people from the plantations between Albany, Ga, and the neighborhood of Camilla, proceeded in a body to that place, accompanied by musicians and a wagon.

This crowd numbered from 200 to 300 colored people, about one half of whom may have carried fire arms of different descriptions. That when within from two to three miles of Camilla they were met by M. G. Poore, Sheriff of Mitchell county, accompanied by four or five citizens of Camilla, who protested against their entering the town with arms, claiming, in accordance with a late proclamation of the Governor, he was empowered to demand that the do not enter they town with arms.

This demand of the sheriff was replied arms.

This demand of the sheriff was replied to by Messrs. Pierce and Murphy, on behalf of the crowd, by stating that they were not an organized body, and in no way under the control of any leader. That those persons with arms carried them of their own accord, and assured the sheriff and citizens of Camilla that they had assembled for the purpose of attending the meeting, and that their intentions were peaceable and without any intent to disturb the peace of the town.

I would respectfully call your attention to the inclosed affidavits of W. W. Pierce, John Murphy, N. F. Patney, and W. G. Poore, the Sheriff of Mitchell county, for a full understanding of all that took place between the Sheriff and freedmen at this time. From the affidavit, it will be seen that he considered the attitude of the crowd approaching the town of such a character as to induce him to return to the town and prepare the citizens against an attack, by directing them as a posse to have their arms ready in case he should call upon them to assist him in preserving the peace.

I have been unable to obtain any evidence that these colored people going to Camilla on that day were either instruct.

General Meade has issued an order distributing the forces under his command to points where he deems it necessary to preserve order until after the election. The military officers are instructed to act in aid and co-operation and in subordination to the civil authorities, and are to exercise decision and judgment unbiased by political or other prejudices.

He also appeals to the people to co-operate with him and the civil authorities in sustaining law and order. He urges abstituence from inflammatory and incendiary appeals to passion, and discountenances the keeping open of liquor shops on the days of political meetings and of elections, and also the carrying of arms and the assertion of individual rights and construing the laws by force of arms. The law itself makes this implication. New York, we repeat, is thus bound to pay in coin the principal and interest of her debt. Such From this conclusion there is no escape.

The message of Governor Seymour, instead of being an authority for the payment of the five-twenty bonds in coin, is an authority for their payment in greenbacks, an authority not merely high in itself, but fortified by the unexpected concurrence of the Republican editors of the West, in whose unskilful hands the message turns out to be a boomerang, which is her solemn engagement. And from it no human power except her creditors can In 1862 Congress made greenbacks lawful money; but this act, it is self-evi-

At the same time they made an appropriation for the payment of this interes in coin, significantly omitting, however, to make any provision for the like payment of the interest due to our own ci zens. This was the first approach which they threw up to protect them in their adthick and heavy upon the shoulders of the graceless recreant. Look next Wedvance upon the honor of the State. The effect was that the interest due to our own citizens was paid in greenbacks. This effect of course was designed; but the design was not yet manifest. So was shaken one part of the citadel of the hound.

Having effected thus much in 1863 they in 1864 followed up the work by adopting this resolution:

Their design bly full habit, and his sudden taking off much as it will be lamented by his friends, will surprise no one who knew him. Howell Cobb was born at Cherry Hill, at once became manifest. Under their in sidious attack the whole citadel of the tate honor indeed was visibly tottering to At this point, Horatio Seymour, who was the Governor of the State, appeared Presidential elector in the same year, was appointed Solicitor-General of the upon the rampart, and thus addressed the Western Circuit in 1837, was a Represenast term. After this last Congressional term, he was elected Governor of Georgia, and afterwards appointed Secretary of the Treasury by James Buchanan. He was a leading actor in the political troubles of 1861, resigned his seat in the abinet, joined the movement of the Southern States with ardor, occupied a seat in the Confederate Congress, served a General in the Confederate armies nted, by friends and foes

Later in life he lost much of this popular favor. But he always re tained the respect and friendship of those who knew him best. He was a ine declaimer, and made a Speaker of the House of Representatives who i nentioned with Stevenson, Polk and Banks, who are counted the most grace al presiding officers of that body. As a oldier he was not successful; but his confederate record is unimpeachable. It

We regret the death of Howell Cobb. He was as pleasant a gentle man and as brilliant an orator as the South had, and we looked for good to come of his reappearance among the masses o the Northern people.

The Next Sensation It is rumored, by that social gossip, which never fails to find its way from one part of the world to another, however dis ant, that the young Marquis of Bute, just come of age, means to pay a visit to the Inited States. He is said to be handsome and cultivated, and is the richest subject in all England. His income amounts to 300,000la year, which, expand ed to dollars and watered into currency making due allowance for a fair rate o exchange, would yield a net of nearly $2,460,000 of annual revenues springing rom perfectly trustworthy and improving urces. Two or three Scotch counties two or three Welsh baronies, and any number of iron mines, coal pits, dock yards, fishing ports, and railway shares are embraced by the title deeds which his lordship in herits. He is three times as rich as the Prince of Wales. The Queen herself has only about a fifth as much to spend in he

He is lord of Cardiff Castle and Master of Cardiff town, e second port of entry in Great Britain and can walk through a picture gallery alf as long as the Hall of Louis Qu Versailles, and hung round with five cen uries of ancestral barons, knights, and sheriffs, including a Prime Minister ofthe realm, famous as the preceptor of old George the Third, and a royal groom, who fell on Flodden field.

Delightful contemplation! It actually cheers us as we write. There's inspiration in the astounding rows of fig-ures and the thundering big names and titles which the theme suggests. A fine, healthy English gentleman, whose clothe are built at Poole's and whose manner imported from the sunny side of the Rue de La Paix; a noble line of Dukes and Earls and what not: loads of money, why ven the Paschall House must pale its in-

Coin; and only coin. The obthe coronet and titles cried out in Jermyn Street, and proclaimed from one end of ligation to pay coin, therefore, results Vanity Fair to the other?

We cannot permit such a possibility to pass unheeded by those of our fair countrywomen who read us, and are in-fluenced by what we say. This is one of the prettiest things that has fell What, now, was lawful money in this country when the five-twenty bonds were issued? Greenbacks. A single word in conclusion. What should be thought of a party which has made the neople take greenbacks when should be thought of a party which has made the people take greenbacks when they were promised coin, which would make them pay coin when they promised only greenbacks, and which pleads the public honoras a warrant for both enormities? What should be thought of a party which thus hypocritically and recklessly lays its sacrilegious hands on the obligation of contracts? Undoubtedly it should be thought to be, what it is, the scourge of the people. What should be done with it? Need we say? As it is the scourge of the people, the people should scourge it from power. And they will do it. the belcony on business matters in the coclest manner. He had shown no excitement either at the time or previously during the morning, and was considered perfectly sober, although he had taken one or two drinks of brandy after his usual cup of coffee. When he stepped triside the office, no one for a moment suspected he had murder in his heart, and the first intimation was the report of the pistol. On receiving the first shot, which passed through his body from the right side to the left, breaking a rise on each side, wounding the heart and lodging in the fiesh outside the rib, Mr. Parker rose from his chair and stag gered down the office; when he was assisted by Mr. Nelson and Mr. Wise into the back office where he expired short, by the company of the second shot was fired which lodged in his arm, and previous to which he was joined by Mr. Wise, who harrowly escap d being shot. Baldwin then applied the revolver to his own head, fired and fell instantly senseless, where he lay sometime in a pool of blood. He was afterwards removed to the hospital, and although apparently in a stupid state, speaks sensibly when roused up, but there his wife in and out of rooms and off sofas and beds without any fear that he might hurt her, and threw her baby (two months old) to the floor with such violence that a Sister of Charity present thought he had killed it. And towards women who seem to have had rather superior personal charms to Mrs. Gamble he observed quite a different style. Mrs. Hujus was the woman from whom they bought the place in the country. They went into the country on account of Mrs. Gamble's health, as to which, of course, her husband was solicitous. Why they went to Rockland county rather than anywhere else does not appear in the testimony; nor does it appear whether the busband and Mrs. Hujus had any acquaintance previous to the purchase of the farm. But when they were once together they got on vary well—so well that though Mrs. Hujus had any farm to Mrs. Gamble she did not go away; so well that when some one, referring to her position, spoke of her as "the woman" (meaning the housekeeper, apparently) she said she was "not the Son Francisco to recuprate, his wife and Vork a week ago for the purpose of acdoctor for which time does wonders, but that, meanwhile, is serious. He saw Mrs. Gamble, and could not make out that she had any disease, but thought (agreeably, perpaps, with Hujus and the hasband; that Mrs. Gamble, and could not make out that she had any disease, but thought (agreeably, perpaps, with Hujus and the hasband; that Mrs. Gamble used too much liquor, and suffered from it. He gave her morphine to time, he being none the wiser for it and the woman none the bster; and, notwithstanding his opinion that she had to disease, she might have had any one of a dozen. He gave her morphine, opium, and podophyllum, and, unless she was taking more morphine than he ordered, the podophyllum should have purged her pretty freely. There is no evidence whether it did ordin toot. He gave enough morphine to embarrass the question whether or not the woman died from that poison, since his giving it might be used to account for any found.

As to the question whether the woman drank herseif to death, it seems to be the theory only of the husband and of Mrs. Hujus. No one of those who knew Mrs.

He Can't Hold in any Longer, and Proposes to Lift the Veil.

To the Editor of the Louisville Journa I have long meditated writing the life of J. flerson Pavis, and divulging in this work a mass of curious and extraordinary information which I have possessed, concerning the private and interior history of his government in Richmond. It was post remarkable singularity of the South remote segainst a debt severely due to history.

Jefferson Davis should have a truthful and scute bicgrapher, one who would do something more than each the shallow clamcurs and interested opinions of the day. Whatever the estimate of his person, he performed a great part in history; and his character, mixed, angular, abounding in surprises, full of caprices and apparent inconsistencies, is precisely that which sifords the most interesting and vivid subjects for biography. The writer is conscious of attempting a high and difficult task—an extraordinery work. He comes to it not only with ample literary preparation, but with an unusual animation. He has been accused of personal hostility to Mr. Davis, and is

A Vermont Tragedy.

Burlington, Oct. 5, 1868.

The people of Chittenden county are all excitement over the murder committed here Saturday evening last, Perry Russell, an old man, nearly seventy-five years of age, respectable and highly ested in his farm of 400 acres, about two niles from Hinesburg village. At the lime of the murder there was no one in the house besides himself and wife, who is about his own age. At eight P M, or a little after, some person knocked at the door, and on being questioned, gave his name as "Joe Busha," the name of a men who had been a laborer upon the fam in August last. Mr. Russell opened the door, when he was immediately by acked down by some one, who mushel is well in mughal last. Mr. Russell opened the door, when he was immediately ricked down by some one, who nushed his way into the room. Mrs. Russell saw it, jumped out of the window, fled to the nearest neighbor's, 'Gerry Coleman's) and gave the alarm. The fright of the inmates of the house, who were chiefly women, prevented Coleman from going immediately to the aid of Russell. He, however, went to the house of a man named Watson, and both men then started to arouse the nelghbors. After securing the co-operation of four or five in the neighborhood they proceeded to the old man's residence, where they found that their fears were too truly realized. On the floor of his residence lay Mr. Russell, with nine wounds in his head, in an insensible condition and dying. Search was made for the perpetrator of the deed, but he was nowhere to be found. Although the house was ransacked, the ruffian did not succeed in getting a single dollar of money. This morning a man, supposed to be the murderer of Russell, was arrested at Waterbury and was brought to Burlington, where he was locked up in jail.

The supposed murderer turns out to be Henry Welcome, a resident of Hinesburg, of respectable family, but a "hard case" himself. Last Tuesday, it is said, he was let out of Montpelier jail, where he had been confined for horse-stealing. He had formerly worked at Mr. Russell's, and knew where the old man used to keep his money. This knocking in the head of defenseless old men and women has become quite a commen thing in Vermont of late years.

PICKING OUT THE COTTON CROP.—Word Picking our the Cotton Crop — Word comes from the planting community that it is almost impossible to have the cotton crop picked. Colored field hands have hat heir noddles filled with voting and politics, and large numbers refuse to work at any price. All this is in face of the fact that the city contains thousands of idle, half-starved negroes, whose only occupation is carrying torches in radical processions. They keep away from the cotton fields because the radicals, in order to score their votes in November, fill their minds with atrocious lies about Kuklux outrages. These poor, silly dups are on the verge of starvation, and those still honest will soon be compelled to steal or die. They could go vation, and those still honest will soon be compelled to steal or die. They could go to the country and obtain employment at good prices; but their pretended friends will neither permit them to leave, nor support them here in idlemess. His Examining Trial for the Murer of Henry Miller.

Proceedings Before Justices Clement and Matlack.

Report of the Evidence

At three o'clock yesterday af.ern according to postponement, the preliminary examination of Kasper Weingartner, accused of having murdered Henry Miller on the Bardstown road, at a point eight or nine miles from the city, last Monday morning, commenced before Esquires Clement and Matlack, sitting as a Magistrates' Court. So dense was the crowd that gathered in Justice Matlack's office that it became necessary to try the ease in the City Court room. immense throng assembled to hear the proceedings, Weirgartzer was represented by Judge Burnett, W. G. Reasor, and Gen. Whitt-sker, and the Commonwealth by Jo. G Wilson, County Attorney, and J. R. W. Smith, Esq. The counsel for the State nade known that they were not ready to ry the case, and asked for its continuance two days to enable them to produre important testimony and otherwise pre-pare for the trial. Nearly an hour was consumed in the argument of this motion by the attorneys on each side, when the court ruled that the examination should called. He deposed in substance as folows: I am Coroner of Jefferson county. held an inquest upon the body of Henry Miller. At an early hour on Monday morning last, Mr. Weingartner, accused, rode up to my house and informed me that his partner, Henry Miller, had been nurdered eight miles from the city, on th the top of his head, the ball having passed out behind the left ear. I had a talk with the accused. He told me that he and Miller were in partnership as hucksters; that on Sunday night, a little after dark, they left the garden on a trip they left the garden on to the country to buy produce; that to the country to Miller laid down soon after starting Miller laid down in the wagon and fell asleep; that they had not proceeded far when he, too, fell asleep. On awaking, he saw a white man standing on the tongue of the wagon, and two negroes on the pike, left of the wagon; that the white man instantly fired upon Miller, as he lay in the wagon, and the two negroes seized him (Weln-gartner), pulled him down upon the ground, and held him while the white man robbed him of his money, $250, and watch; that the assailants then disap-peared through the woods on the road-side. He told me two stories about the point to which he drove forward after he attack; at one time that he proceeded to the other side of Ferne creek, and at another that he went to the bill between the creek and Louisville. Thence he returned to the White Cottage, roke up the proprietor, Mr. Deming and related what had happened. He did not tell me why he came back. I exam-ined his person and found several outs or tears on his clothing, but no wound upon his body. There was a slight scratch on one of his fingers. (Mr. Moore exhibited

An unprovoked murder was comp Jeffersonville night before last, at the ouse of Mr. Frederick Mauk, in the vicinity of the Ohio Falls Car Works-the proprietor, Mr. Mauk, being the victim.
Mr. Mauk kept a drinking house, of an unobjectionable and orderly character, and was esteemed as an upright and worthy German citizen. Upon the night in nestion, at a quarter before elever clock, the bar-keeper desired to close r the night, but was prevented from so by the name of Halpine, who, being under the influence of drink, objected to the proceeding, and attempted to bring on an altercation. The landlord, Mr. Mauk, was about to retire for the night, but hearing the noise below, went to the scene of the trouble, and while endeavoring to per unde Halpine to leave, was stabbed by bim just below the stomach, penetrating the liver, and causing the death of Mr Mauk in less than ten minutes after the wourd had been inflicted. Halpine es-caped, and is still at large. Au inquest was held upon the body of the murdered man, but nothing additional to the above fees a reward of one hundred dollars for the arrest of Halpine. Halpine is said to be a dissipated man, and very quarrelsome when drunk. He had been working at the Car Works, and when he working at the car works, and when he had no money be was granted credit for whisky at Mauk's saloon. He had run up a large whisky bill with Mauk, who had requested him to pay up, as the Car Works Company had paid him his wages a few days previous. It seems that Hal-pine did not respond to the dun at the time, but went into the saloon again night before last to get another drink, when the difficulty above recorded oc-

A Hoosier Taken in and Done for

A case came up before the City Cou esterday which displays in a peculimanner the dangers of the town.

It appears that an old gentleman from Indiana, accompanied by his son, a youth of some sixteen years, visited our city a few days ago on business. The or the night, but was prevented from so doing, owing to the presence of a man by the name of Halpine, who, being under the influence of drink, objected to the had on his person the sum of $375 in ready cash, and checks for other amounts. In the course of the old gen-tleman's peregrinations around the city with his son, they fell in with two genteel looking young men, who appeared to take quite an interest in the old gentle-man. They drank to gether, and finally made a proposition to him to visit some of the "glittering generalities" in the upper part of the city. To this end they started off with the old gentleman, and one of them instructed he son to return to the hotel, and his ther would join him in the cou hour. Thus they parted—the father to visit a bagnio, and the son to go to their headquarters at the hotel.

The old story now follows. Mr. Sted-

They were evidently in ignorance of the old man's having the checks on his person, as they were not taken by the precocious young robbers. In accomplishing the deed, they were compelled to beat the old man up badly. until this morning.

Bigamy.

Quite an interesting case of domest elicity has occurred here. It would appear that a certain Dr. James McKer ie was arrested yes terday at the instiga-tion of his wife, charging him with biga-ty. Mrs. McKenzie alleges that she was narried to Dr. McKenzie in 1852, in Edinburgh, Scotland, and shortly after-wards came to America. The Doctor left home in 1856, and was never heard of until 1858, when he turned up in Perry county, Indiana. The last time she communicated with him he wrote to her from the city hospital here in 1856 a kind letter, signifying his intention of coming home. After this, all of her letters to him came back through the post-office Market by through the post-office. Mrs. McKen zie's son by a former husband came here and ascertained the doctor's whereabouts. He wrote his mother, and she came here in June. She found the Doctor, her husband, at his office, betweeen Main and Market. She was coldly received. She had already heard that he was living with another woman, charge, and offered to provide for her, but said nothing of living with her. Commonwealth vs. First National Bank of Louisville. From the Franklin Circuit Court.

Opinion delivered by Chief Justice Williams, Oct. 8, 1868.

The Commonwealth brought this spit to compel the appelled to pay into the revenue of the State fifty cents on the share of stock as required by the ect of Feb. 9, 1865, Myer's supplement page 482, which requires officers of National Banks in this State to file with the Auditor a statement of the capital.

five miles above Brandenburg, Ky. During the day the men had made forays smong the seighboring farmers, offering their medical services, and pretending to be on the lookout for eatables. On Friday morning Jacob L. Kinter, who lives a few miles above, discovered that about thirty or forty bushels of wheat, in sacks and ready for shipment to Lie & Hoyle, of New Albany, had been carried off in his skiff. No traces of the robbers were left. A messenger was dispatched below upon the first boat, but no discorries were made. On Satundav a couple of men brought three bags of wheat to be swapped for flour at the mill of Mr. Gillmore, just above Brandenburg, on this side of the river. The miller at once suspected that he had got on the track of the robbers, and he accordingly told them completed to pay.
